Buyer's Guide Deposits: product gallery, supplier profiles, buyer demand trends

Prints, accents raise daypack's visual appeal

The latest releases are available in a variety of colors, patterns and embellishments.

Manufacturers of daypacks in mainland China and Hong Kong are directing R&D efforts toward enhanced aesthetics.

Multi-panel models, for instance, are being produced in greater quantities. These urban-come-in-a-range-of-designs, including paisley and camouflage. Geometrical, floral and striped patterns are popular as well.

Decorative elements also play a vital role in increasing visual appeal. One model in this gallery features a long, braided drawstring closure with metal gullies while another incorporates pink and black leather straps.

Some releases have dual-layer mesh compartments and extra pockets for wallets, water bottles, umbrellas, mobile phones and other gadgets. Several models come with wide straps and thick backrests.

The products in this gallery represent the current trends in daypacks.

Colorful paisleys

DTB Group Ltd's model CM-15002 mini bucket bag adopts PU leather with colorful paisley prints. It measures 15.5x14.5x11 cm. Hues, sizes and designs can be customized. OEM and ODM orders are accepted. The bag goes for $7 to $14 for an MOQ of 200 pieces.

Silkscreened design

The model E2801-0191 daypack from Shenzhen Senda Bags Co. Ltd uses environment-friendly polyester blended with polyurethane and silk-screened design. The bag has multiple compartments, including a laptop sleeve with a detachable strap for enhanced protection. It utilizes 1000d nylon as a canvas. Overall dimensions are 20x14x10 cm with a weight of 0.6 kg. Customized colorways, from 10 to 100, are available in a 100-piece lot.
